

I Love You More

A Coco the Axolotl Adventure

By Dr. Anita NIRVENA Illustrations: Loopinky

I Love You More

By Dr. Anita NIRVENA
Copyright 2026 by Dr. Anita NIRVENA
All rights reserved.

Illustrations: Loopinky

No part of this book may be reproduced without written permission.

First Edition, 2026

*For every little heart that loves without measure
and every mama who loves you more.*

A heartwarming illustration of a mother tucking her child into bed at night. The mother, a pink creature with large, flower-like ears and a gentle smile, is leaning over the bed. She is tucking a blue blanket around the child. The child, also a pink creature with similar features, is lying in bed, eyes closed, smiling peacefully. A small brown teddy bear sits on the bed next to the child. On the bedside table, a small green and yellow nightlight is glowing. The room is dimly lit, with a window in the background showing a full moon and stars. The overall atmosphere is cozy and comforting.

Every night, Mommy tucked Coco in,
just right.
Not too tight. Not too loose. Just right.

Coco looked up and said
— I love you, Mommy.
Mommy smiled: I love you MORE.

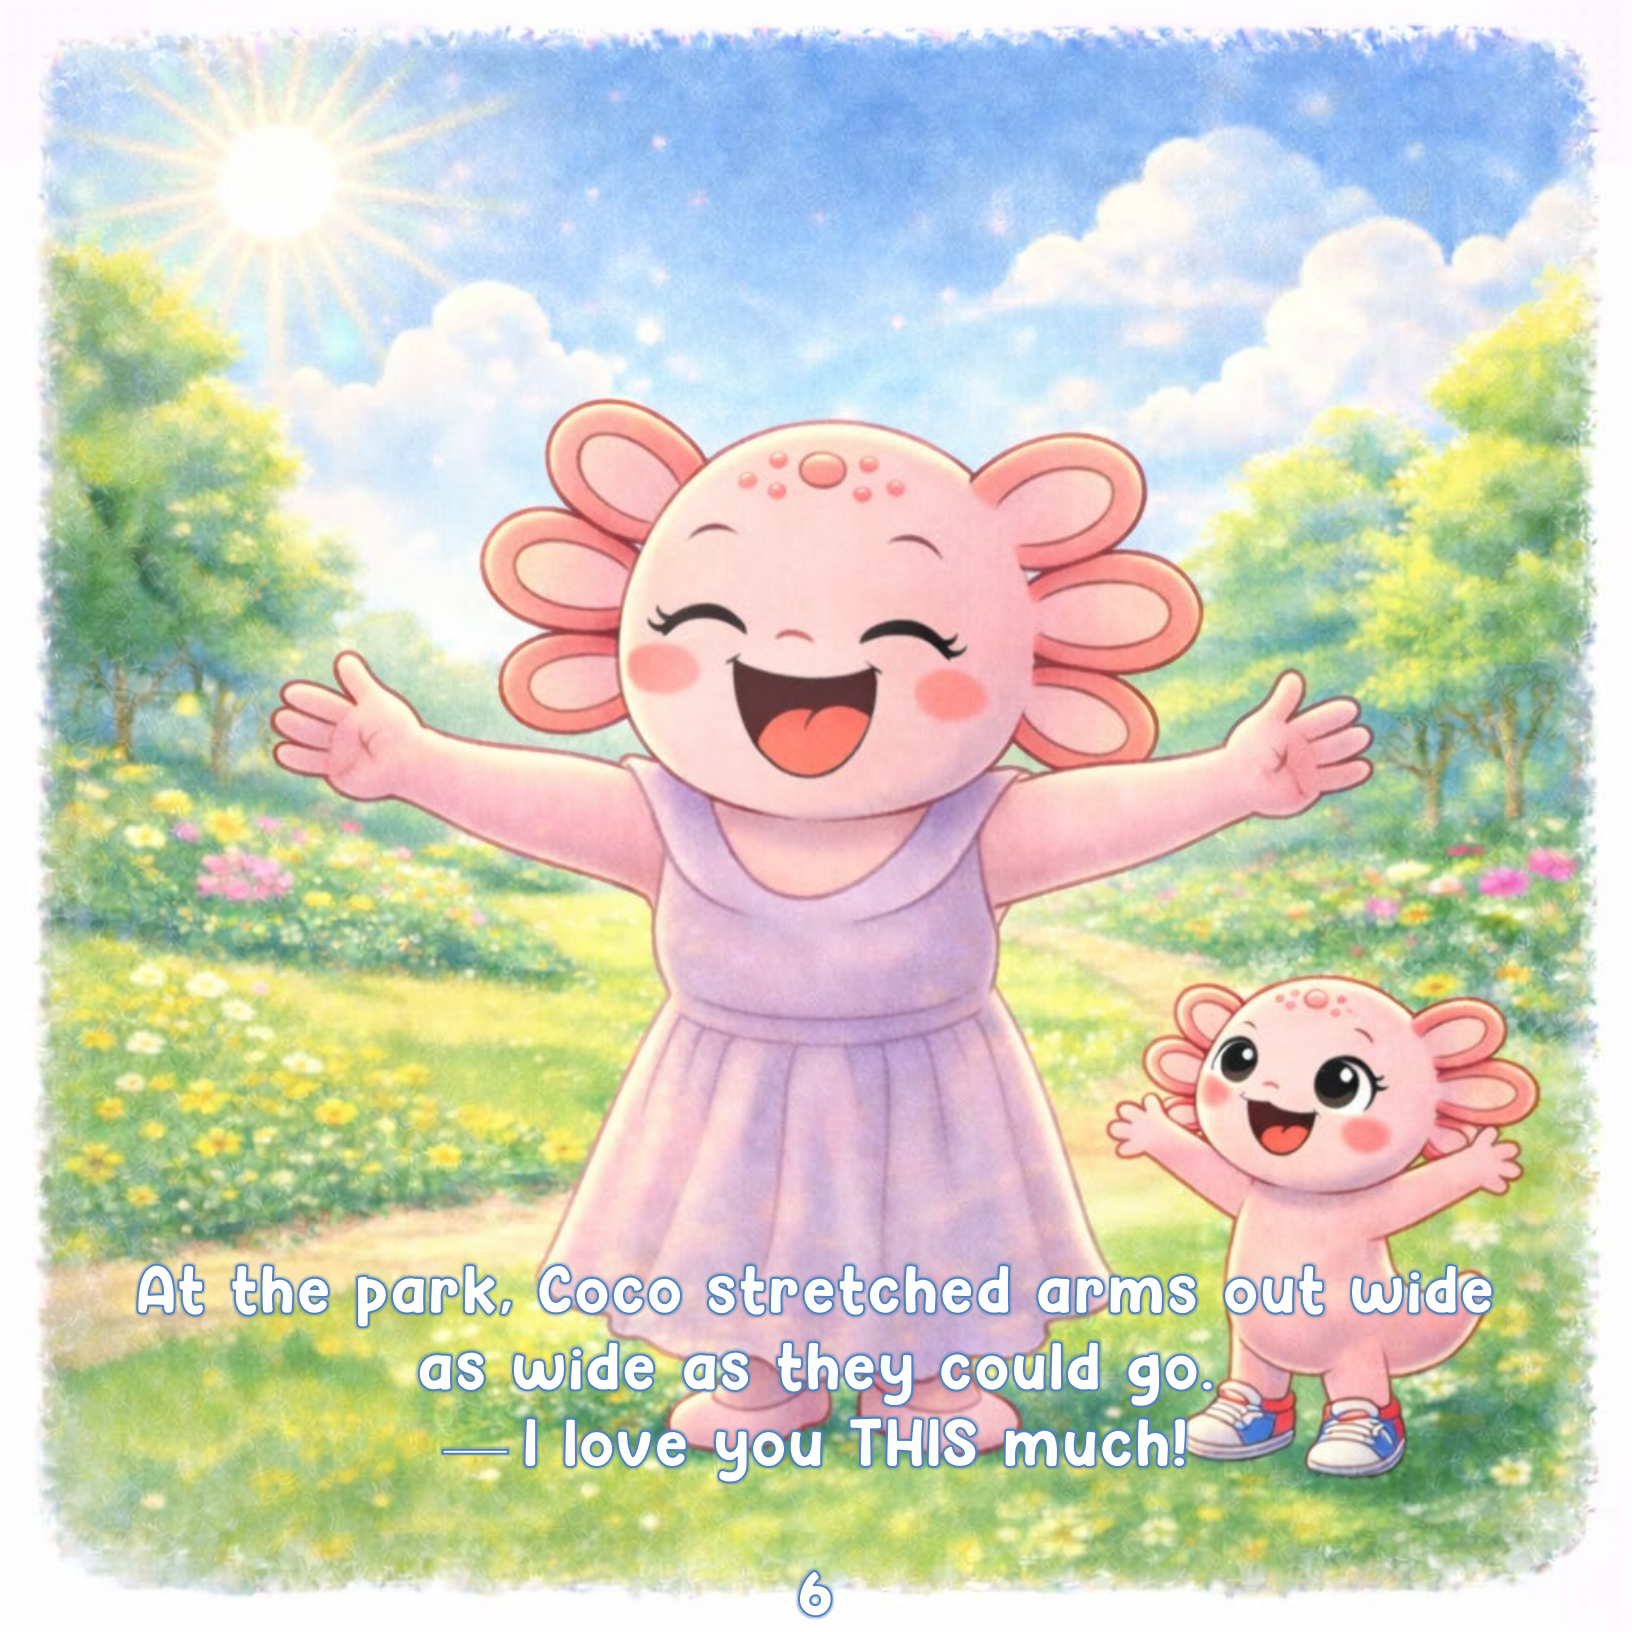

Coco thought about this.
More? How much more?

The next morning, Coco hugged Mommy tight.
— I love you as big as my hug!

Mommy hugged back -- even tighter.
— I love you MORE than that.

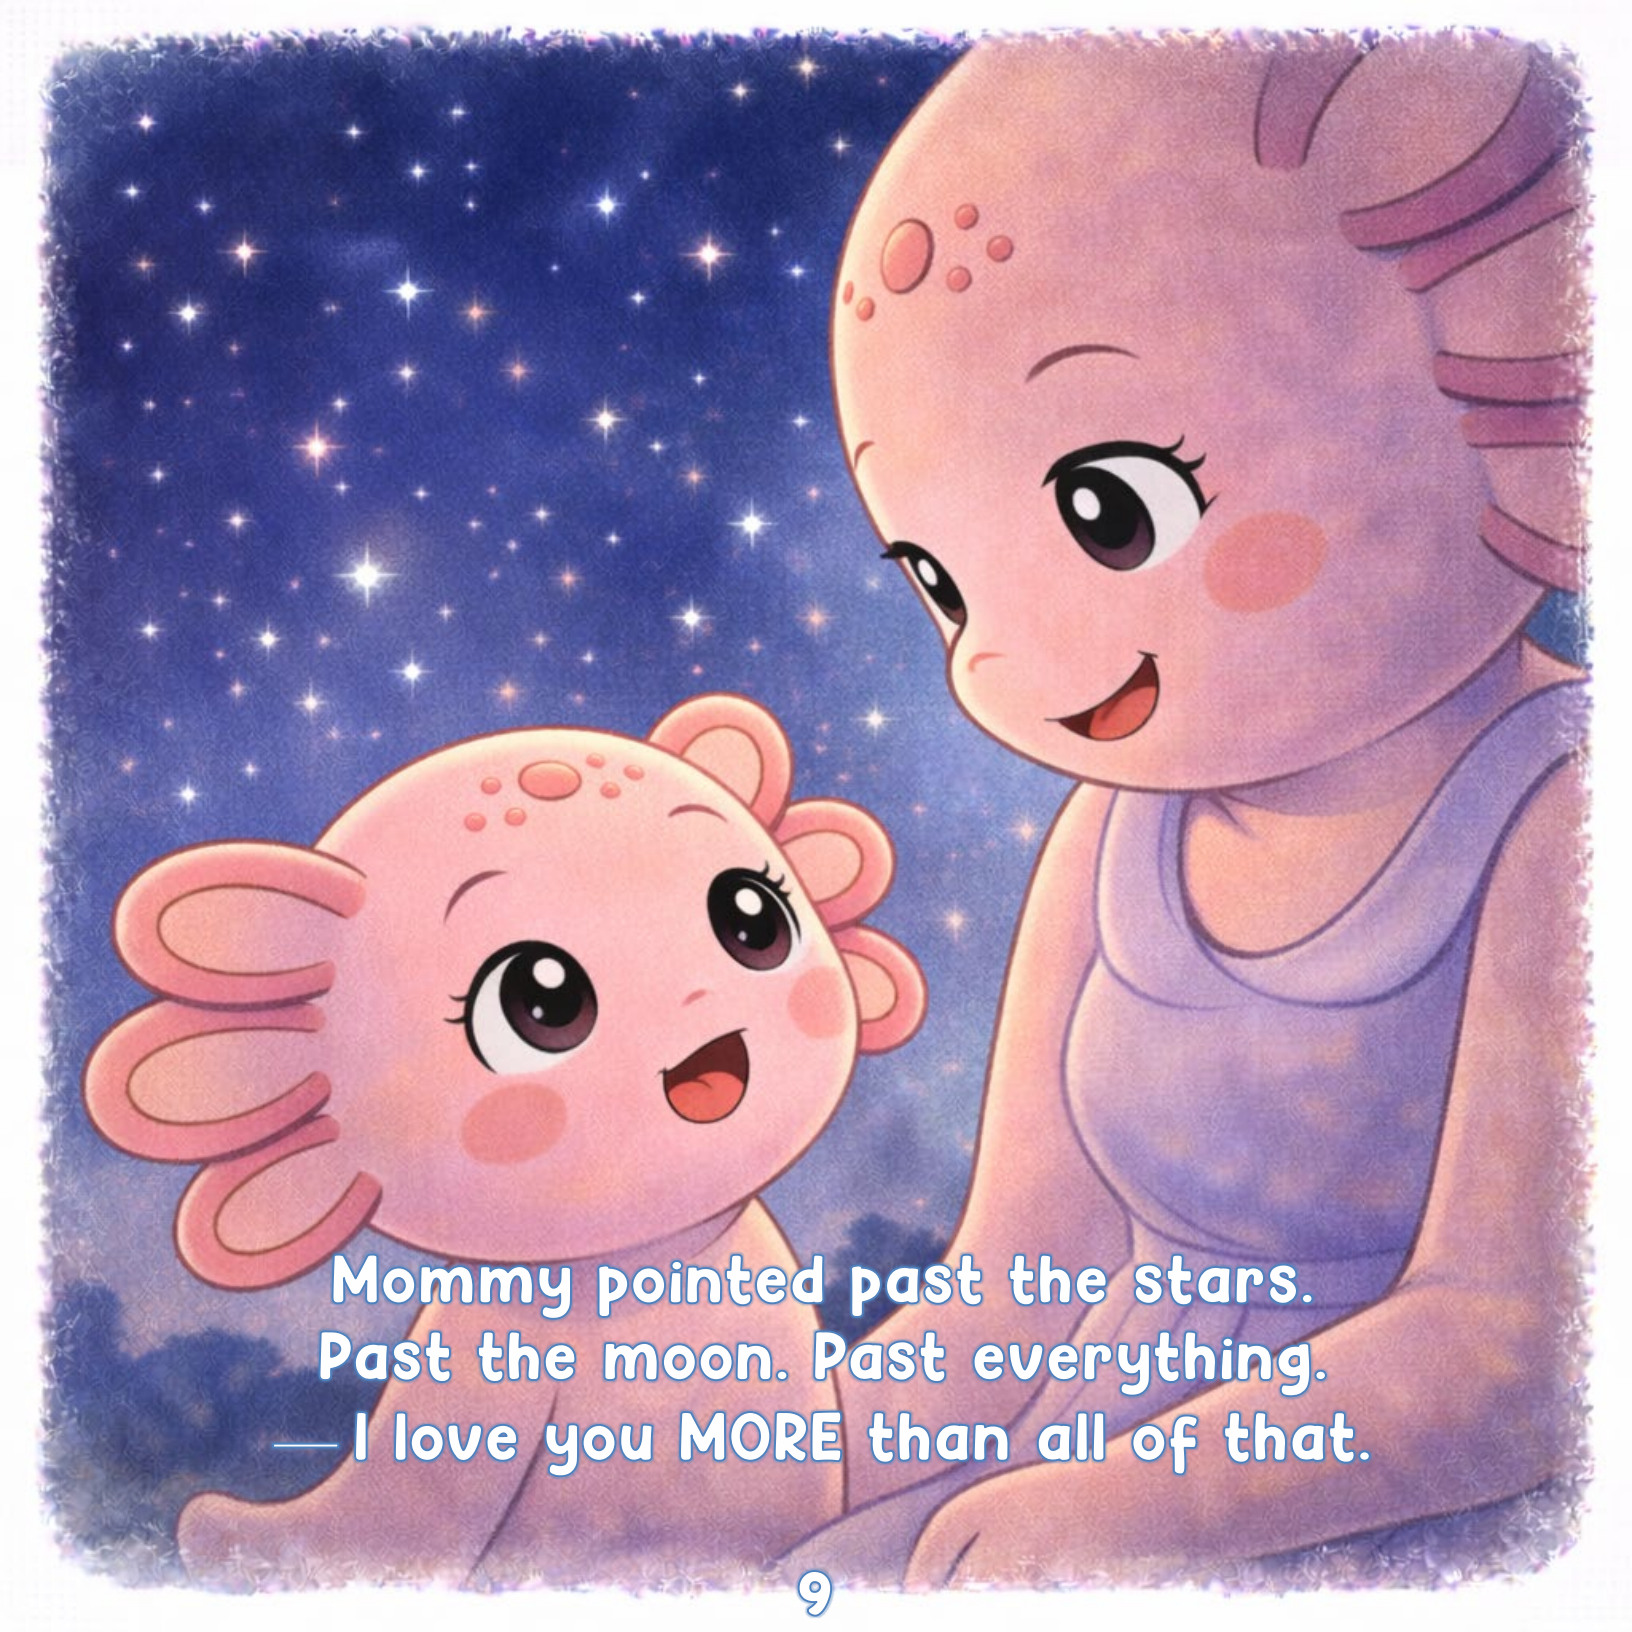

At the park, Coco stretched arms out wide as wide as they could go.
— I love you THIS much!

A mother and daughter, both with pink, flower-like heads and large eyes, are sitting on a grassy field at night. The mother is wearing a purple dress and the daughter is wearing a red and white striped shirt. They are both pointing up at a starry night sky with a crescent moon. The mother is smiling and the daughter is also smiling.

Mommy stretched her arms out wider.
Much, much wider.
—I love you MORE than that.

That night, Coco pointed to the sky.
— I love you all the way to the stars!

A soft, painterly illustration of a mother and daughter. The mother, on the right, is a pinkish-orange alien with large, expressive eyes, a gentle smile, and small orange spots on her forehead. She has long, flowing purple hair. The daughter, on the left, is a smaller version of the same species, also with large eyes and a joyful expression, looking up at her mother. They are set against a deep blue night sky filled with numerous bright, twinkling stars. The entire scene is framed by a soft, textured purple border.

Mommy pointed past the stars.
Past the moon. Past everything.
— I love you MORE than all of that.

A soft, painterly illustration of a large, pink, bear-like character with closed eyes and a gentle smile, hugging a smaller, identical character. They are sitting on a grassy field under a deep blue night sky filled with many bright, twinkling stars. The characters have rosy cheeks and small tufts of hair on their heads. The overall mood is peaceful and tender.

Coco was quiet for a moment.
How can you always love me more?

A soft, stylized illustration of a mother mouse and her baby. The mother mouse is on the right, with her eyes closed and a gentle smile, holding the baby mouse. The baby mouse is on the left, also with its eyes closed and a smile. Both have pinkish-orange fur, large ears, and small spots on their heads. They are set against a dark blue night sky filled with many small, bright yellow stars. The entire scene is framed by a rough, textured border.

Mommy sat down.
Pulled Coco close.
And said nothing for a little while.

— Because before you were born,
I already loved you.

Before your first smile.
Before your first word.
Before your first hug.
My love didn't start when I met you.
It started before.

So no matter how much you love me...
I will always love you first.
And I will always love you more.

Coco thought about this for a long time.
A very long time.

Then Coco smiled.
The biggest smile.

— Well then...
...I love you MORE, Mommy!

Mommy laughed out loud.
Okay. You win.

Nobody loses
when love is the game.

I Love You More

How much does Mommy love you?
More than hugs. More than stars. More than everything.
She loved you before you even knew your name.